LeRoy Maughan is a senior facilitator for FranklinCovey's Global Speed of Trust Practice. He is a professional mentor and keynote speaker and has noted expertise in connecting individuals, teams, and organizations. LeRoy believes that true success is a collaborative experience, achieved only when the entities and individuals involved are committed to mutual benefit.

LeRoy's professional experience is both broad and deep, giving him an engaging and interactive mentoring style. He fosters creative thinking, lively dialogue, and utilizes practical, skill-practice activities to solidify the teachings. This creates change on a transformational level — to the culture of the organization, not just its business practices. His coaching talents have helped individuals, teams, organizations, associations, and communities significantly improve their performance and achieve their desired results.

His client experience includes work with multinational organizations, Fortune 500 companies, small businesses, entrepreneurial startups, government agencies, pharmaceutical companies, and financial institutions including: 3 M Corporation, Accenture (USA and Australia), Alcan Cable, Boeing, Eli Lilly, Ford motor Company, General Motors, Hewlett Packard, Merck Pharmaceutical, Motorola, U.S. Army, Navy, and Air Force, Northrop Grumman, Novartis Pharmaceutical, Texaco, TRANE, and United Auto Workers.

Prior to joining The Global Speed of Trust Practice Team, LeRoy was a successful information technology entrepreneur and worked as a senior-level consultant, facilitator, trainer, and speaker with the Covey Leadership Company. LeRoy continues to work to inspire leaders, managers, and individuals to achieve greater professional effectiveness and more meaningful personal contribution.

He and his wife Teri reside in Lindon, Utah, in close proximity to their two married children and their eight amazing grandchildren.
